EXPLANATION.

On the left of names and next to the left hand margin are two columns of Arabic figures; the right hand column consisting of running numbers, and the left hand of referring numbers. The latter, if before a father's name, (and then it is ever less than the No. to the right of it) refers back to the same figures in the column of running Nos. where his name occurs as a child. If the referring No. is before a child's name, (and then it is always larger than the No. to the right,) it refers onward to the same figures in the column of running Nos. where he occurs as a father. When a name is moved or traced either backward or forward, the figures before it merely exchange places. Names having no referring Nos. before them, are either traced no further, or they have their descendants arranged immediately below their names.

Dates following the names of wives without the word and intervening, refer to her.

Numerical letters before the names of children denote their No., which must not be confounded with the running numbers in Arabic figures. These numerical letters are dropped when the child becomes a parent.

Small figures after names mark their generations, their Puritan ancestor being accounted the first.

? after a figure, denotes the reference not certain.

? after a name, signifies that it is inferred from circumstantial evidence or doubtful records, or that it has not been traced.

Initial letters are put for the names of places immediately after they have been spelled.

The practice of double dating between Jan. 1st and March 25th,—thus 1675–6, until the introduction of N. S. in 1752, is retained to prevent confusion, and enable families to compare and correct their dates.

N. B. Prior to 1752, the civil year began in March, which was called the first month, April 2d month, often expressed thus,—25 (2), i. e. 25th day, 2d month. To render O. S. into N. S., the first month must be counted the 3d, and ten days be added to all dates between 1582 and 1700, and eleven days to dates between 1700 and 1752. For the single year 1600, eleven days must be added.

BRIGHAM.

Brigham is a Saxon word, compounded of Brigg, bridge, and ham, house. It was originally the name of a manor, now called the parish of Brigham, in the county of Cumberland, adjoining Scotland, to which kingdom it has at times belonged. It lies on the south side of the river Derwent, here crossed by a magnificent bridge, and revealing on the opposite bank the trace of a Roman fortress. It is quite extensive. It embraces four townships, several chapelries, and the borough of Cockermouth, which formerly sent two members to Parliament. It is bounded by a chain of small lakes, and the rivers Maron and Derwent, and is intersected by the Cocker, requiring so many bridges, and giving so many brighams, as might have suggested and rendered appropriate the name. The old Parish Church, an ancient structure, dedicated to St. Bridget, is yet standing on the bank of the river, half a mile out of town. The living is a discharged vicarage, rated in the king's books at £20, and in the gift of the Earl of Lonesdale.

The Barony, including Brigham, is now called by the English "the honor of Cockermouth." But in the reign of Edward II, mention is made of the "Barony at Brigham"; and, while under the jurisdiction of Scotland, it was in the acts of her Parliament styled the lordship of Brigham, and as late as 1672 included in her "sherrefdome of Berwick."

Brigham is an object of interest to the antiquarian. Soon after the Norman conquest it was assigned by Wm. de Meschines to Waldeof, the son of Gospatrick, the Earl of Northumberland. Waldeof, as it is believed, built here a stupendous castle, which became the Baronial seat of his successors, the lords of Alerdale. Here as feudal kings they must have reigned for generations, maintaining in splendor a school and theatre of chivalry; dealing continually in the trade of war; subject to no prince except as circumstances impelled; and humored and courted for a makeweight by the sovereigns of rival kingdoms. And, could the walls of the old castle speak, what royal embassies and visits, what splendid tournaments, what thrilling events and scenes of horror might they not relate? This fortress was one of the strongest upon the island. It is supposed to have been constructed of the materials of the old Roman fortress, brought over the Derwent. It was in such repair in 1648 that it was garrisoned for the royal cause, and stood a month's siege before it was reduced and dismantled; and it is not yet in total ruins. The only parts, however, of "the wonderful structure now inhabitable are the gate house and two rooms adjoining, and the court room. On each side of the entrance gateway is a dungeon capable of containing 50 prisoners."

This castle, with the manor, descended from Waldeof to Fitz Duncan, nephew to Malcom, king of Scotland, and his co-heiresses, one of whom married into the family of Albemarle and the other into that of Lucy, shared it in moieties. On the death of Wm. de Fortibus, Earl of Albemarle, and his countess, Isabel, without issue, their moiety of the castle and honor lapsed to the crown, and was bestowed upon Piers Gavestone, in whose possession it continued for sometime; but, in 1323, it was granted by Edward II to Anthony, Lord Lucy, proprietor of the other moiety by inheritance. After his death in 1369, Maud, his sister and heiress, settled the castle and honor of Cockermouth on her second husband, Percy, Earl of Northumberland. They next passed to Charles Seymour, Duke of Somerset, by marriage with the only daughter of Joceline, the last Earl of Northumberland; and, ultimately, in like manner came into the possession of the Earls of Egremont, the present Earl being lord paramount of the honor. He is of the family of Wyndham, and the honor of Cockermouth confers on him the title of Baron. To him belong the court leet and the court of dismissions, held at Cockermouth, for the copyhold tenants of Brigham. [Lewis's Top. and His. Dic. of Eng'd, p. 232.]

About one century after the conquest the English nobility began to assume lower or sir names. The first bishop with two names appeared in 1107, and the last with only one name in 1322. Noblemen took their names from their estates. Hence it is inferred, that during this interval, some successor of Waldeof assumed the name of Brigham. For, the name evidently originated with a noble family, and in the north of England, where its geographical centre first was; and has apparently remained. There, and in the south of Scotland and north of Ireland, it is still common, while the Directory of London reports it but once. The locality, rank, and antiquity of the family are obvious. Berry gives the following arms, the simplicity of which proves their antiquity :—

Brigham—Az. a chev. betw. three lions, rampant, or.

Brigham—(Yorkshire) Ar. a saltier, engr. vert.

Brigham—(York) Sa. a fleur-de-lis within an orle of martlets sa.

Brigham—(Yorkshire) Ar. a fleur-de-lis between eight martlets in orle sa. Crest, a boar's head bendways, couped sa.

The following marriages of noble blood are given by Burke. "Thos. Brigham, of Brigham, married Joan, daughter of Thos. Roadston, a descendant of Sir John, lord of the manor of Hayton, in the days of king John.

George Brigham, of Brigham, about the time of Henry VII, married the daughter of Thos. Grimston, Esq. Kt. and Judge in 1444.

John Brigham, Esq., of Wyton, in 1669, married Mary, daughter of Thos. Meynell, of N. Kilvington," &c.

Nicholas Brigham, a poet, historian and chronicler, born at Caversham, is mentioned by Wood in his Athe. Oxoni. as having "received an academical education at Oxford University, in the time of Henry VIII., and as having, in admiration of the works of Chaucer and respect for his memory, removed his bones, in 1556, to St. Peter's Church, Westminster, and erected a comely monument over them with Chaucer's effigies and an epitaph." "Several other Brighams without Christian names before them," had, in his time, studied at the same University.

All these must have been of noble families.

No longer after the adoption of sir-names than 1405, Rheimer mentions a Thomas Brigham, who had probably been concerned with the Earl of Northumberland in a revolt, as one whom the king of England would not admit to the oath of allegiance. And in the acts of the Scotch Parliament for 1479, "Johannes de Bridgeame" is referred to, but in what relation it might puzzle Sir Walter Scott to determine.

No other locality in Great Britain is of sufficient importance and antiquity to have conferred this family name. There is a rural district of about two square miles in Yorkshire, called the township of Brigham, which 200 years ago contained one gentleman and 103 inhabitants; an estate probably granted with knighthood to some member of the renowned family from whom it took its name.*

* Since type for the above was set I have found, in Wood's Athenæ Oxoniensis, mention of Thomas Brigham, who "had descended from those of Brigham in Yorkshire," and who "had lands of inheritance at Caversham, Oxfordshire, where he died 6 Ed. VI." The seat of his family, in 1728, continued at Canon alias Cane End, Caversham, where it may still remain.

In Norfolk county is the parish of Bridgham, the orthography of which indicates an English origin more modern than the family name, and perhaps too modern to have supplied an other family, since there are no Bridghams reported in the London Directory.

From the manor of Brigham, and the lords of Allerdale, have no doubt sprung the name and blood of the New England Brighams. Courteous and honorable, truthful and just let them then forever be, or abandon the name. It is scandalous to degenerate. For the high standard of the English gentry can be maintained by republicans, and improved by the help of religion. This knew Thos. Brigham, and he came to America, to show it and set the example. One tradition, contradicted by another, declares that he was from Scotland, to which the original seat of the name then belonged. He had a bound servant from that kingdom, who probably arrived ten or fifteen years after him, and he might have been from the old castle, yet he was quite as probably from Caversham, or from Yorkshire, where Sir Richard Saltonstall had belonged, under whose patronage, if not Nicholas Danforth's, he not improbably came.*

The following is the first and only mention of him obtained from England. "Thomas Brigham aged 32 years embarked at London for New Eng^d Apl. 18, 1635, in the ship Susan & Ellyn, Edward Payne Master." It is not ascertained that any other of the name ever embarked for this country. There was a John "Brigan," (Brigham) who owned land in Watertown in 1642, who might have been his brother, for he named a son John, but nothing further is reported of him.

There was also a Sebastian Brigham, who, in 1638, bought a lot for a house and garden between Crooked and Long streets in Cambridge, but I find no further trace of him. No other early or later emigrant of this name, save Thomas, appears to have left issue in New England, and only two others, both from England and still living, are ascertained to have settled in other states.

Thos. Brigham's name first appears on our records at Watertown. Here, in 1637, he was the proprietor of a fourteen acre lot, "bought of John Dogget & bounded W. by the homestall of Sir Richard Saltonstall, S. by Charles River & E. by Cambridge former line, being on that strip which was taken from Watertown in 1754 and annexed to Cambridge. He settled hard by, and built his house in Cambridge, on a lot of 3½ acres, which had been assigned him by the townsmen in 1638. This lot was bounded N. E. by the road from Cambridge to Watertown, S. E. by Joseph Isaac, S. W. by Symon Crosby,† and N. W. by the highway to Windmill Hill, by which it was separated from Watertown line and his lot in do. It was about two thirds of a mile W. of the site of Harvard University, and in 1642 contained a dwelling-house and outhouses, and was then mentioned as situated at the W. end of C. His lot in Watertown abutted upon Charles River at the most northern curve of the stream, contained the first high bank above the site of Fort Washington, and offered the first facility on the N. side for a wharf. Here, according to reliable tradition, a wharf was very early built, and no doubt a depot to accommodate the inhabitants of Watertown and of other towns, if not of Cambridge, which had no wharf as late as 1650. Did not Thos. Brigham erect these, and was he not a commission merchant? Windmill

* While this has been standing in type awaiting returns from England, my correspondent, H. G. Somerby, Esq., writes that "he has visited Caversham and searched the registers of baptisms, marriages and burials from their earliest date in 1597 to 1640, and found of the name only one entry, viz., Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Brigham, baptized Feb. 7, 1625–6," adding, "consequently the ancestors of the emigrant were not of Caversham." No answers have yet been received from Cumberland County, or Yorkshire.

† Symon Crosby was one of 17 men with whom Thomas Brigham embarked in England. Of these about equal proportions settled in Watertown and Cambridge.

Hill must have been upon his Watertown lot and near the wharf. Had he not also built a mill thereon prior to 1638, when the townsmen assigned the land adjacent to him on the S. E. and reserved a highway on the town line to this hill, which would also have secured access to the wharf?

Thos. Brigham settled at the very place which Gov. Winthrop and assistants, after repeated meetings and consultations, agreed, Dec. 21, 1630, was a "fit place for a fortified town" and the capital of the Colony. Here, Dudley, Nicholas Danforth, and other chief men built their houses, and the General Court held their first sessions; and here Thos. Brigham resided until 1648. Having been admitted to the freeman's oath he, in 1639, was chosen a member of the board of townsmen, who exercised supreme authority in municipal matters and had the distribution of the public lands. In 1639, he was appointed with Thos. Parish to see that the owners of the fence around W. field removed it and set it up between Cambridge and Watertown. He served as townsman alias selectman the next year, and also in 1642 and '47, and as constable in 1639 and '42. His election to these offices, considering the character of the citizens and the standing of his associates, was a higher endorsement of his standing and responsibility than the same offices could have conferred any where else in the Colony; and they imply much in support of his character and consideration in the country from whence the planters came. While he continued his residence in town he took a leading part in the management of all municipal interests. He was the proprietor of cattle and many swine. In 1647, when the town contained 90 houses, 135 ratable citizens, and had been settled 17 years, he owned nearly one third of all the swine. This further indicates that he had a mill on the toll of which they were fed. His herd occasioned him much trouble. He was repeatedly fined for delinquency in the observance of the law relative to them; yet the selectmen, in their order for collecting fines of "brother Brigham," abated, unasked for aught that appears, one third of the amount. But a citizen who had to be often fined would not answer for a townsman, and he was set aside while the fining continued. The records are significant, and if the inference from them is just, then he was the first Brigham in this country who was ever put out of office for hogs; and as he did not owe his re-election to any resemblance of them, his example is worth recording, since bristles have become a recommendation of candidates.

The townsmen of Cambridge, acting upon the principle that where much had been received the more must be given, divided her common lands to settlers according to their estates. By this rule Thos. Brigham drew more than quadruple the amount of most others. In the last and principal division, he, out of 115 assignees, received 180 acres, the 13th largest share, while others were guilty of such poverty they had only a few acres. Besides his house lot of 3½ acres in town, he received at the same time 8 acres on the "S. side of the water," [Brighton,] and, in 1645, 10 acres more in the same part of the town, and 1 acre on Charlestown line. In 1646 and '47 he received 10 acres for wood lots, probably in W. Cambridge; and, in 1652, 180 acres in Shawshine, [Billerica.] In 1648 there was laid out to him 72 acres "on the rocks" upon Charlestown line; and 17 (3) 1648 he bought of Wm. Hamlet 10 acres in Fresh Pond meadow, on the N. W. side of the great swamp. Of these he took immediate possession and built upon the former. By the help of Peter B. Brigham, Esq., of Boston, the rocks have been found and the place of his last habitation identified. It is now in Somerville, about one third of a mile S. of Tufts College and 100 rods E. of Cambridge Poor House, on the S. W. side of an uplift of clay slate about 70 feet in height overlooking Fresh Pond 1½ m. at the south. A few rods S. W. of this there is another uplift of the same formation and of about the same size and altitude, but the rock does not, as in the former, crop out, yet it was doubtless one of "the rocks" which constituted a well known ancient landmark. For Thos. Danforth, as if connected with Thos. Brigham, immediately after the above assignment, purchased of Nicholas Wyth, 48 acres "upon the Rocks near Alewive meadow having Thos. Brigham on the North." This lot must have included the site of the poor house, and probably the S. W. rock, and by its boundaries it contributes to the identification of Brigham's location, which had been ascertained from other evidence. His tract, for a farm, had advantages unsurpassed at the time by any in the town and perhaps in the Colony, and he had not improbably made sure of it years before it was formally assigned. The allotment to him of one acre on Charlestown line 3 years before, might have referred to the future assignment of this for a farm. The contour of the land around the site which he selected for his house sheltered him completely against storms from the N. E., N., and N. W. The rock, cropping out a few feet distant and divided by plains of cleavage and stratification, yielded at the stroke of the iron bar in whatever width or thickness was needed, and, when slid down to a new resting place, resisted both heat and frost. It furnished a lookout, with a convenient flight for discovering and giving signals of danger or business; before his door lay an alluvial plain of a deep sandy loam, without boulders or sulphuret of iron, skirted by a perennial stream of pure spring water to attract his stock. Beyond spread his Fresh Pond meadow, then prolific of nutritious and exuberant grasses, and at a short distance was the meat tub of Alewive River. Sea fowl must have called on him oftener than his wants, and pigeons never could have passed without roosting upon his rocks for him to bring down a shower for his table and neighbors. Interior settlements had secured him against surprise from Indians; or, if not, his watch tower was a tower of defence that they would never assail. Here lived Thos. Brigham, contented with his portion of good things, with which the millionaire is not. Here he read his Bible and communed with his Redeemer. Here he interceded for his race, completed his victory and left for his coronation. Hallowed be the place; hallowed his memory! Here let his children assemble to praise and pray, know and be known; and build up a friendship strong and enduring as "the rocks."

Thos. Brigham's last place of worship must have been Medford and in her ancient graveyard no doubt repose his ashes, awaiting a monument worthy of his descendants.

In his latter years he seems not to have increased in wealth but the reverse. The reasons are unknown.* He had probably embarked in new business in which he was less skilful than in his former. He left his estate evidently involved, so much so that his home farm, except the house and 4 acres, and most of his other lands and agricultural implements had to be sold. Yet he left an estate; for, after the final settlement, there remained his lot abutting on Charles River valued at £40; upland and meadow in the hither end of Watertown valued at £60; and 10 acres in Rockie Meadow valued at £15; and a home lot of 4 acres with house and barn estimated at £70. He left, for his time, a spacious house. It consisted of a hall, parlor, kitchen, and two chambers; all, at his death, in 1653, completely furnished, and amply stored with necessary provisions. The inventory of his estate was peculiar. In the settlement of other estates prior to that time, it would be difficult to find one of more personal property, including so many articles of luxury. Silver spoons, and other utensils of silver, "join chairs," and "join stools," cushions, pieces, damask cloth, livery table, one flock and four feather beds, are enumerated; and his wardrobe, for the age, was that of a New England gentleman. He had two bound "servants, 5 horses, 14 sheep and ten cattle," and his inventory footed up £449 4. 9., a handsome estate for his time, and if adjusted to the then current prices of labor and grain, compared with the present, the amount was about $8,000 in our present currency. This sum, reckoned at six per cent. compound interest, would now amount to over $1,000,000,000. The property which he left was not squandered; and when the good habits of his descendants are considered, and the advantageous investments they have been continually making with the inheritance, have they not enjoyed, do they not now enjoy, a vastly greater amount of the good things of the world in consequence of the legacies of their ancestor? As a race they have ever been in good circumstances. I have found but one ever supported by the town, and he, not until losing a good estate by continental money, and attaining the age of almost 90 years. But, however these statements may be criticised, he was in other and better things their benefactor. Prior to 1637, he had become a member of the church, and was that year admitted to the freeman's oath: and every thing indicates that he was truthful and sincere in his vows, and faithful in their observance; that he secured and enjoyed the confidence and love of the first and best of men, and co-operated with them to plant the seed and cherish the germ of our national freedom and greatness; and that by his prayers he laid up a Heavenly inheritance for his race, of which many have taken possession to their eternal joy. Can any be so blind to the value, and so ungrateful as to decline their portion? God forbid.

Proved 3d 8m 1654,

Recorded 25-11-1654, Mid. Prob., L. V., p. 41 and 43-7.

This will, written, no doubt, by Thos. Danforth, the son of Nicholas, deceased, and subsequently Dep. Governor, departs from the more general and common forms then in use, to describe the religious experience and views of a dying saint, that he might leave a legacy of instruction, infinitely more valuable than his bequests. By this, though dead, he yet speaks, and may all who read learn like him their own character and dependence, and prepare for the same glorious reward.

His will, and the history of the settlement of his estate, may indicate something of his family and social position, and perhaps aid in ascertaining his transatlantic history, and in finding the link that will connect him with the founder of the name: for some whom he appointed as overseers were probably from his native place. The distinguished Wm. Brattle, of Boston, assisted his executrix like a brother-in-law, and Gov. Danforth accepted the appointment of overseer and trustee, and acted as such while he lived; and left it to his own executor to complete a settlement with the heirs of the testator, fifty years after his death. Was Gov. Danforth his nephew or cousin? or was it in this instance a righteous man's reward, that his widow and fatherless found such favor?†

Thos. Brigham m., about 1637, Mercy Hurd, a lady 10 or 15 years his junior, of whom tradition has brought down a high character, alleging that she and her sister, who m. Wm.? Cutler, were so tantalized in England for their non-conformity, that they resolved on seeking their liberty and fortunes in New England, and arrived unattended by husbands or lovers. The tradition is direct, and probably reliable. Success rewarded the enterprise. They were in as quick demand as unmarried teachers at the West; and if the number of worthy husbands whom a lady marries is the measure of her worth, then Madam Brigham was a most worthy and attractive woman, for she m. no less than three, viz: Thos. Brigham, who d. 18 (10) 1653, and, 2d, March 1, 1655, Edmund Rice, afterwards of Marlborough, by whom she had two daughters. He d. 1663, and she m., 3d, Wm. Hunt, of M. in 1664, who d. 1667. She d. Dec. 23, 1693, after a third widowhood of 26 years. During this period she saw two bloody Indian wars. During the first, Marlborough was burnt, and she, with one of her sons, is believed to have retreated to their former home, on the rocks in Cambridge, while her other sons went in pursuit of the enemy.‡

* He was, doubtless, too "weak in body" to subscribe his name, and therefore signed with a mark, like many a good scribe in his condition. He died the next day.

† Gov. Danforth was from Framlingham, Norfolk Co., England, where his father, Nicholas D., was said to have owned a manor, which he sold to avoid being knighted.

‡ Formerly, emigrants to a new country did not, as now, sell out, but retained their former places for a retreat. If the old practice were revived, half who now take their all to a paradise in the West, would be back again. I say this, after a sojourn there of 20 years, in the exercise of a profession which gave the best opportunity to judge, and in order to warn the Brighams against unnecessary emigrations.

Thomas[3] and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham had,

I. Mary,[2] b. prob. in Watertown, mentioned only in her father's will.*

II. Thomas,[2] b. 1640–1, d. Nov. 25, 1717, aged "76 yrs." See Chap. I.

III. John,[2] b. Mar. 9, 1644–5, d. Sept. 16, 1728, aged 84 years. See Chap. II.

IV. Hannah,[2] b. Mar. 9, 1649–50, m. Samuel Wells, of Hassenburg, Ct.

V. Samuel,[2] b. 12 (11) 1652, d. July 24, 1713, "ag^{d} 59 y^{rs}." See Chap. III.

* The character and state of the records of Cambridge render it almost certain that every birth, during 1634–54, was entered, and that the entire list has been preserved. The non-occurrence of the birth of Mary and Thomas indicates that they were born elsewhere; and probably on their father's lot in Watertown, before he had time to denude his new lot in Cambridge and build upon it, or move his house over the line. If so they must have been excluded from the births in Cambridge, while their father, already admitted a proprietor of Cambridge, engaged in building within her lines, and residing conveniently near her centre, might have been elected one of her townsmen.

CHAPT. I.

1. Thomas Brigham,[2] 2d, on the marriage of his mother to Edmund Rice, seems with his brothers and sister to have continued with her. On attaining his majority he purchased of his father-in-law for £30 a town right in Marlboro' "of 24 acres, with the frame of a dwelling house thereon, with all the privileges of the town commons and further addition of allotments to be made thereto." And, Aug. 28, 1665, having completed payment for the same, he received a deed from the executors of Rice. This was a most fortunate purchase. It has advantageously affected the circumstances of thousands of his descendants to this day: For it constituted him an extensive proprietor of the lands of what are now four townships, mostly of the altered mica and hornblend slate formations, the richest of extent in Mass. on which agriculture can be profitably pursued. In 1686 he was one of a company to purchase 6,000 acres of the Indians situated near Marlb., and afterwards "annexed to her." This further enlarged his claim to wild lands, and, as fast as he and his sons increased in ability to occupy them, they drew lots, and mostly in the S. W. part of what is now Marlboro', and in those portions of Northboro' and Westboro' which are contiguous.

He settled in the S. W. part of the town, on what is now called the Warren Brigham farm, on the south road to Northboro'. He drew 63 acres at one division, 39 of which was on the side of Crane Hill, on a path from his house to Crane Ordinary. The house which he built after Philip's war, and which was subsequently used as a garrison, is yet standing; and even the chair in which he expired is in the neighborhood, in the possession of one of his descendants, Mrs. Lewis Ames. He was probably one of the principal citizens of the town, but in what capacities he served her or the church cannot be ascertained, owing to the loss of records. He made his will April 17, 1716, which was proved Jan. 2, 1717. In this he gave to David and Gershom all his lands situated on the W. side of Assabet River [S. branch] and other lands near them; and to Nathan and Jona. in equal shares all that part of the Eaton Farm on the E. side of this stream. To Elnathan, whom he had previously settled on a part of this Farm, he gave more land, and made Nathan, Jonathan and Gershom his executors. To each son he had probably before conveyed tracts for farms on which they had long been settled; and he must have been an extensive land owner. How many farms, mineralogically the richest in New England, have long been inherited from him! He had 5 sons, and his two brothers had 9, of whom 8 lived to have families in the same community; and yet four times the number of his descendants have been traced. To what is this attributable, except to his inheriting the largest portion of their father's estate, and seizing lands on a narrow strip of mica slate? Samuel secured lands partly upon it, and his seed remains. John for himself and sons went down entirely off of it, and who can report his race? If they ever turn up in a series of generations, in one place, it will probably be where they have ascended to the formation which their fathers left, or to a newer one.

6. 26. David,[3] was chosen surveyor at Marlb., 1711, but, on the division of the town in 1717, he was thrown into Westboro', where he was chosen to various town offices, and served 7 years as sealer of leather, and 6 years as selectman. He, as one of the privileged class, was, by a vote of the town, allowed a pew in the meeting-house. He settled on a wild tract of about 500 acres, including the State farm and several adjacent farms in Westboro' and Northboro', and built his house about 60 rods E. of the Reform School House, which, during his old age, was burnt, with much of its contents. June 14, 1748, he made his will, ratifying deeds of farms and land which he had previously given to his children, John, Silas, Levi, Jonas, Asa, and Deborah Brigham, and giving his wife room in his house and the use of all in-door movables, which after her decease were to be equally divided to his children and son-in-law, Edwd. Newton; but such as Jonas had supplied since the burning of the house were, on the strength of his word, to be first surrendered to him, To Jonas, who had already given security to provide for his mother-in-law, he gave a 14 acre town-right, a part of the right purchased by his father of Rice; also all his stock and tools for carpentry and husbandry, making some reservations for his daughter Deborah. He gave his apparel to be equally divided to his 5 sons. Jonas was to pay the funeral charges of his parents, and be executor of his will. This trust he so far performed as to obtain the receipts of the heirs June 29, 1750, three days after the death of their father, but his will was not proved until Aug. 22, ensuing. David[3] m. 11. 50. Nathan,[4] Lt. prior to the second division of the original township of Marlb. in 1727, served her in several minor town offices, but being now included in the new town of Southboro' he appears at once among her principal citizens, serving the first year as a selectman, and soon after as treasurer. He was repeatedly placed on committees for hiring schoolmasters, and chosen for the 29th time a selectman, at the age of 77 years, at which he remonstrated, and was, with public thanks, excused. He lived near the N. part of Southb., near the houses of Samuel and Dana Brigham, and is presumed to have inherited the lands S. E. of Crane Meadow, drawn in his grandfather Thomas's right. He inherited the bible, law book, cane, and sword, of his father Nathan.[3] He retained his vigor to a great age, and when in his 90th year was wont to mount his horse without assistance. He m. Dec. 24, 1717, Dina Rice; and 2d, about 1729, Elizabeth (Ward) Snow, who brought with her a susceptible daughter by a former husband, who conceived the design of strengthening the union by an intermarriage with her step-father's son, Moses. But this hard-hearted Cœlebs proved recusant, and partial to Miss Grout of Westboro'. To stop his visits in that direction was now indispensable. Had he made them by railroad she might have thrown obstructions upon the track; for > "Earth has no scourge like love to hatred turned, > Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned."

What could she do? He rode Selim; and when she saw him at the glass, disguising himself for a lover's call, she fell into a fit of jealousy and revenge, rushed into the stable, hamstrung and ruined his colt, and thus sealed a match that proved a blessing to the world. 12. 59. Thomas[4] settled in the S. W. part of Marlb., where he was constable, tythingman, selectman 3 yrs. and sealer of leather 6 yrs. In 1738 he was petit juryman, and in 1831 member of a committee to procure a school-master. In 1757 he administered on the estate of David Burnam of Southboro'. Aug. 13, 1765 [pr. '64] he made his will, giving to his wife Sarah the use of half his house, and pew in the meeting-house, all his household stuff, his horse and chaise while she remained his widow, 7½ bus. of corn, 7½ of rye, 1½ of wheat, all ground, 6 score weight of pork, 5 do. of beef, the apples, cider and sauces of all kinds that she might need, 2 cows and 5 sheep, kept summer and winter, 26*s.* 6*d.* in cash, and a supply of firewood, all to be supplied her annually by his sons Ithamar and Paul. To his sons Aaron, Ezekiel, and Elisha he gave one right in great Crane swamp, to be equally divided between them, and each was to receive from his executors £20 within 3 ys. after his decease.

To his grand-daughter, Lydia Bigelow, he gave £133, to be paid her within 5 yrs. after his death ; also his desk and all his household stuff after the death of his wife, and all that belonged to her aunt, Sarah Brigham, provided she should marry and leave heirs of her body ; but if otherwise, all after her death should go to his children or their heirs. To Ithamar and Paul he gave his wearing apparel, his husbandry tools, and steelyard ; and after the death of their mother, his clock, chaise, and pew ; and to Paul the half of his house reserved for her. His money and stock he ordered to be equally divided to his children and grand-children. To his sons Ithamar and Paul he gave his homestead, and all his lands in Marlb., Westboro', and Southboro', and a right in little Crane swamp, and made them his executors. His will was proved March 6, 1766. His house, yet standing, is in the S. W. part of Marlb., near the Agricul. R. R., about 25 rods N. of Mr. Alden Brigham's.

33. 97. Jonas,[4] Capt., settled on land in Westboro' inherited from his father, and lived about 60 rods E. of the Reform School. He was one of the most distinguished citizens of Westb., and through life stood high in the public esteem and confidence. He was elected to town offices soon after attaining his majority, a thing of very rare occurrence in his time. He was repeatedly selected to look after the interests of schools, and once placed on a committee to prepare instructions for the School Committee of the town; and he seems to have been a man of considerable education. He often served as surveyor and constable, and in 1764–'77 he acted 7 yrs. as selectman. As moderator of townmeetings, as a member of vigilance committees and as a delegate to the County Congress at the beginning of the Revolutionary struggle, and during its continuance, he appears to have been an efficient citizen and enlightened patriot. 53. 168. Nathan,[5] Capt., was a Lt. in the first French war and a distinguished officer. In the service he became warmly attached to Capt. Thos. Gage, afterwards Gen. G. To avenge the massacre at Fort Wm. Henry, he and a party volunteered, under the command of Capt. Rogers, to penetrate into Canada, attack and burn the town of St. Francis, and retreat. Having accomplished the former, they were pursued and overtaken by the Indians, who killed and scalped 30 of their number. The remainder fled into the wilderness and for the most part perished. Of the few who lived to return was Lieut. Brigham, whose deeds of valor were eulogized in ballads. He settled in Southboro', ½ a mile E. of the meeting-house. Among other town offices he was chosen one of a committee to seat the meeting, in 1778, and one to revise the constitution reported to the towns, in 1786, for their consideration. He m. 55. 170. Edmund,[5] Dea., settled near Brigham pond in the N. E. part of Westboro', where Silas Walker resides; became a citizen of consideration, and through a long life maintained the strictest regard for moral virtue. He was warden in 1774, member of a committee of vigilance and correspondence 1777 and 1778, and selectman 1779. At the surrender of Burgoyne he had command of a company of volunteers, and on marching their prisoners to Boston they were encamped for a night upon his grounds, while he doubtless entertained the officers having them in charge. During the halt, a Hessian prisoner drew a map of his splendid farm as the one he intended to draw for his service in conquering the country. This map, correct as the Hessian's taste, was discovered about 1800, by a citizen from the vicinity, hanging upon the wall of an inn in Germany and recognized. Deacon Edmund m. 74. 234. Timothy,[5] Col., inherited from his father an extensive farm in the E. part of Northboro', the value of which he entirely lost through the depreciation of continental money after the sale. This misfortune, followed by others, subjected him to want, and to the humiliation, in extreme age, of being supported by the town, the first instance of the kind, if not the only one, to be found in the history of the race. In 1764 he was chosen a selectman of Westboro', and in 1777, after the division of the town, a selectman of Northboro'. At the commencement of hostilities, in 1775, he entered the army as Captain, and received £18 from the town for the first term of service. He is supposed to have removed his family from Northb.

soon after, and to have further served his country in the field. Although poor he was received with profound respect, and entertained with free hospitality wherever he called during life.

280. viii. Ebenezer,[6] Esq., b. April 28, 1789, one of the most eminent of the early planters of the Western Country, and one of the fathers of the state of Wisconsin, who is proud of her parentage. (See First Annual Report of the State Historical Society, p. 94.) In 1814 he emigrated to the West, and in 1828 settled at Blue Mounds, then in the Territory of Michigan, but now in Dane Co., Wisc., where he has ever since continued to reside, unm., sharing largely in the profits accruing from the rise of real estate. He is the proprietor of a large tract of land, rich in agricultural and mineral resources, and one of the original proprietors of the city of Madison, the capital of Wisconsin, now hardly 20 years old, yet containing, in 1859, a population of 12,000 souls. Mr. Brigham depends not on his wealth, nor this humble record to preserve his history. He is extensively and advantageously known; and when the whole of his character shall come to be written, the reader must feel that a good name is emphatically better than riches, and constitutes the value of a posthumous memory.

94. 290. Elijah,[5] Hon. Of this man I cannot speak in justice to convictions, and escape the suspicion of extravagance among strangers: while, among his acquaintance who survive, nothing would fail of a hearty response which I might say commendatory of his social and domestic virtues, his commercial integrity and honor, his great common sense and refinement, his patriotism and political integrity, his wisdom and benevolence, his fidelity to every official and important trust, and his services in the advancement of the moral, civil and educational interest of the community in which he lived. He graduated at Dart. Coll., 1778, began the study of the law, but, for some reason unknown, relinquished it before being admitted to the bar, and settled in his native town as a merchant. Besides representing Westboro' in the General Court, he served 12 years as a member of the Senate, and 2 years as executive counselor, 16 years as a judge of the C. C. P. for Worc. County, and was a member of Congress from 1810 until his death at Washington, Feb. 22, 1818, aged 64. 112. 368. Stephen,[5] Capt., was a very pious church member. Among his numerous descendants of three generations it is ascertained that one only is known to have ever fallen into immoral habits, while many, like him, have been created living members, to verify the promise to the faithful and their seed. Alarming is the contrast in other cases, where I have made the search in vain for one instance of hopeful consecration in five successive generations. He m. at Fitzwilliam, Feb. 1, 1781, Sarah Harrington, fr. Framingham, b. 573. VI. Lincoln Flagg,[7] Hon., b. Oct. 4, 1819, at Cambridge, was designed by his father for mercantile pursuits, and placed in the counting-room of the late Samuel Austin, Jun., of Boston, where he remained two years. But his tastes and aspirations were for another if no higher calling, and wisely for him and the public were all restraints removed and he allowed the choice of his own inclinations. He left the store in the autumn of 1837, and in a single year, under the tuition of his late brother-in-law, Rev. David Peabody, then of Worcester, became prepared to enter Dartmouth College, where he graduated with high honors.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

HON. LINCOLN BRIGHAM.

July, 1842; and was called to deliver a Master of Arts oration at the Commencement in 1845. In Sept. 1842 he entered the Dane Law School at Cambridge, where he pursued the study of law until Jan. 1844, when he entered the law-office of Colby & Clifford of New Bedford, the former being then Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and the latter, subsequently, Attorney General and Governor of Massachusetts. Here he continued until the June term of the Court of Common Pleas at New Bedford in 1845, when he was admitted to the bar, and the next month received into a professional partnership with his late instructor, Hon. John H. Clifford. In 1853 Mr. Clifford was chosen Governor, and the partnership was consequently dissolved. But so high an opinion did Gov. Clifford entertain of him, that in Feb., after taking his seat, he nominated Mr. Brigham, who was thereupon appointed District Attorney for the Southern Criminal District of Massachusetts, comprising the four S. E. counties of the State. The duties of this office he continued to discharge with such acceptance, that, when it became elective, in Nov 1856, he was, by popular choice, continued in it until June 1, 1859, when he resigned to accept the commission of an Associate Justice of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, an office of great responsibility. To this station he was appointed on the nomination of Gov. N. P. Banks; and although he had never rendered judicial service, yet the public satisfaction expressed at the appointment, and the impression which he produced in the metropolis where, in July, 1859, he commenced his judicial course, prove that, as a jurist, he has not his whole mark to make, nor the public confidence and esteem yet to gain.

He m. Oct. 20, 1847, Eliza Endicott Swain, b. July 11, 1826, dau. of Thomas S., b. at New Bedford, 1800, d. May 15, 1829, the son of Thaddeus and Ruth (Hussey) Swain, of New Bedford. 299. 671. Josiah,[6] Esq., is thus noticed by Livingston, in his Ac. of Eminent Men, pp. 23–4:—"Josiah remained at home till he was 21 years of age, enjoying the care of virtuous and pious parents. The advantages for general education afforded the young at that period were comparatively limited, and were confined to a few months' instruction each year in the district schools. Agriculture was a favorite pursuit with his father, but for this Josiah had little fancy. Knowing that he must depend upon his own exertions for support, he concluded to fit himself for teaching school, and for this purpose was entered a pupil at Leicester Academy. In the winter of 1809–10, he was engaged as teacher in one of the public schools in East Sudbury. The same school he taught the succeeding winter. In April, 1811, he removed to Quincy, where he has ever since resided. He went there as teacher in the only annual public school then in town, and continued in the same school three successive years. In this important and responsible office he was very successful, having qualities which won for him alike the confidence of parents, and the respect and good-will of his pupils. From boyhood he had been inclined to mercantile pursuits, and he accordingly relinquished the office of school-teacher in the spring of 1814, and engaged in trade at Quincy. Here, for nearly forty years, he has been thus employed—the upright and successful merchant, enjoying the uninterrupted confidence of the community in which he has resided. In August, 1814, he became associated with the Quincy Light Infantry, an ancient and respectable military company, then under the command of Captain Thomas Tirrell. This company was drafted into the service of the country in the war of 1812 with Great Britain, and was ordered to Boston on the 12th of September, 1814. It was encamped at South Boston with the troops there stationed under the command of General Maltby. Mr. Brigham was with the company through this service; and in 1823, having previously filled every subordinate office in the same, he was elected its commander. It was one of the best disciplined companies in the State. In the year 1826, Mr. Brigham was chosen lieutenant-colonel of the third regiment of the first brigade in the first division of the Massachusetts Militia; but having been several years in the service, he saw fit to decline the honor.

"By diligence, and fidelity, and unswerving integrity, Mr. Brigham has enjoyed the confidence of those with whom he has had intercourse and dealings. The esteem of his fellow-citizens has been manifested in their selection of him to fill the various offices of honor and trust in the town, and in the parish with which he is connected, as clerk, assessor, treasurer, member and chairman of the General School Committee. He has been for many years trustee or director in several moneyed institutions, clerk and treasurer of the Quincy Canal Corporation from its first organization in 1825 to the present time, and is at this time president of the Quincy Savings Bank, and president of the Quincy Stone Bank. The commission of justice of the peace he first received from Governor Everett. Possessed of excellent judgment, he has never engaged in hazardous speculations, but confined himself principally to the legitimate operations of his vocation. For more than twenty years, Israel W. Munroe, a worthy, upright, and efficient gentleman, has been associated with him as partner in trade. By personal application to business, by perseverance, and economy, and unsullied honor, he has acquired for the evening of his life a competent estate. Amidst the cares and responsibilities of commercial and civil life, he has not been unmindful of his religious obligations. He is never absent, forenoon or afternoon, from the stated worship of the Sabbath, and both he and his lady are found at the communion-table of Christ. His regular and temperate habits through life have secured for him general health and vigor of constitution. In social intercourse he is frank and affable. In manners, he well illustrates the Christian gentleman. Through life he has given the constant weight of his example to the cause of good order, of sound morals, of virtue and piety in the community. We take pleasure in presenting his upright and successful career to the young men of our country seeking the paths either of mercantile or official trusts and preferment. While encouraging them in the honorable pursuit of wealth and outward reputation, so will it especially teach them the only secure basis on which outward reputation and success can rest—a character strong in integrity and in that fear of the Lord which is the beginning of wisdom."

He m. Nov. 23, 1814, Elizabeth, only dau. of John Fisk of Northboro', by his wife, the dau. of Rev. Abner Ballou, pastor of a Baptist Church in Cumberland, R. I., a lady whose sense, energy and fidelity have contributed much to the prosperity, happiness and position of her husband. They had,

346. 708. Otis,[6] Esq., although reared upon a farm, and aided by only common opportunities, acquired a fair education, and became well-informed on all common subjects. This was prior to the enterprise of looking out and bringing forward for public education suitable young men for the ministry. Had this been earlier commenced, such were his natural endowments, and so hopeful his religious profession, that he could never have resisted the summons, sure to have reached him, to equip for a captain upon Zion's walls. And when the summons did come, and with the voice of many waters, he listened for himself, and concluded that it was either man's voice, or not intended for him. Engaged already in the prosperous pursuit of agriculture, he judged it his duty therein to abide ; thinking, perhaps, that the words, do good, had not always been synonymous with preach the gospel, and that he might do something to restore their former meaning. Some wondered at his decision. But the Providence of God, guided by infinite wisdom, sooner or later vindicates his course, and has already done so in regard to Mr. Brigham. For, to human appearance, not every able and devoted minister has, in a long life, rendered Zion more service. To narrate his agencies, gratuitously rendered, would exceed my limits, and over-tax the memories of the living. In 1817 a Sunday School was opened in Westboro'. Of this he became both superintendent and teacher, and continued such for over 40 years. During much of the same time he was placed on committees, charged with the most delicate and important interests of the church and parish. No one had more influence. The selection of the site, and the laying out of the new cemetery, the location and erection of the orthodox church, and other public buildings, can be remembered only in connection with his name. In the selection of candidates, and the settlement of pastors ; in the maintenance of purity in doctrine and efficiency in discipline ; in the promotion of spirituality and revivals, and in the patronage of public Christian charities he has uniformly been conspicuous, prudent, prompt, faithful, and liberal. If he has been charged with radicalism, it has been the radicalism necessary to progress, and consistent with the old land-marks. His example, in this respect, is his highest and most enduring praise. In his view, the old paths in which walked Thomas Brigham have been trod safely too long by the saints to be left for new divergent ways, because smoother and less repugnant to carnal affections ; and it is hoped that he and his will hold on to their course, and be joined with a great multitude, that cannot be numbered.

Mr. Brigham has had much to do with the civil affairs of Westboro'. He served 14 years as selectman and overseer of the poor, and for 20 years commonly acted as moderator of town-meetings. For two years, viz., 1839 and 1840, he represented her in the General Court.

About 25 years ago he began to collect the Genealogy of the Brighams. All was darkness before him. He, to use his own expression, had to strike his own light for every step he took in the right direction. His perseverance and success, under such circumstances, prove a strength of will and patience rarely to be seen. At the end of 14 years of frequent application he had found most or all of the records since waded through a second time, and had collected and arranged for publication what he had discovered and obtained from numerous correspondents and reliable traditions. But, strange to relate, he found no encouragement to publish. And, in order that the benefit which he so benevolently and affectionately sought to confer might not be utterly lost, he drew a chart of the branch of the race to which he belongs, divided the rest of his MSS. and sent them in parcels, beyond recovery, to such as he hoped would use them.

All this trouble has not been in vain. His chart, freely furnished by him, has supplied some names not elsewhere found, and enabled me to verify the correctness of parts of this arrangement. It has also given many families their complete genealogy, and secured a demand for this work, but for which it might have shared no better fate than his own.

Ardent and happy in his own friendships he seeks to foster and multiply the same in others. As a means of this, he annually gathers at the old firesides in Westboro' large companies of the Brighams who, in their picnics, enjoy a resurrection of old-fashioned friendship, and seem to renew covenant forever to exclude the spoiler. May their next congregation be upon the rocks in Somerville, to resolve on a cenotaph to their Puritan Sire. For surely his memory deserves a larger and richer monument than that of his most eminent descendants: and as honest and grateful children will they not arrange to erect it?

He m. Abigail Bates, b. Jan. 22, 1792, d. May 2, 1831, dau. of Zealous Bates of Cohasset, and sister of Rev. Joshua Bates, D. D., President of Middl. College; and 2d, her sister, Miss Adeline Bates, b. May 10, 1801. He rs. in the north part of Westboro', and had,

467. 787. Bela Brewster,[7] Col., was a clerk in the store of P. S. Whitney, Boston, for two years after his father's removal to Canada. In 1803 he joined him, settled in London, and became a loyal subject of a government better administered than our own. Here, in the unnatural war that ensued, he was called into service. In 1812 he had the command of a Rifle Company in the First Regiment of Oxford Militia, and commanded the Regiment during the rebellion in 1837. He was much on duty during these wars, acquiring for life the taste of a soldier. He now, in his 76th year, sojourns, with his lady, at Bath, N. Y., possessing a ready memory, and a hand steady as in youth. At the age of 70 he dispensed with his cane, and has found no need of it for the last six years: and "so vigorous is he that the community were lately surprised to see the man who had been schooled in the excitements of the camp, and accustomed to the fierce exercise of war, amusing himself, on the 74th anniversary of his birth, with skating, at which he was able to distance many a juvenile. And so healthy and cheerful is he, that did the fountain of youth, which Ponce de Leon vainly sought, really exist, its magic waters could scarcely bestow on Col. Brigham more of youthful feeling than he possesses."

He m. Dec. 26, 1816, Hannah Davenport, dau. of Richard D. of Richfield, N. Y.; and 2d, Jan. 30, 1823, Abby Whitney, dau. of Nathan W. of Richfield, b. March 9, 1796, and had,

1. Charles Henry,[8] Rev., A. M., b. July 27, 1820, at Boston; educated at the Bowdoin and public Latin Schools for eight years, where a goodly share of prizes attested his assiduity; entered Harvard College in 1835, and graduated, among the highest of his class, in 1839, receiving, that year, the first Bowdoin prize of forty dollars. The next year he spent in teaching at Baltimore and travelling; entered the Cam. Div. School in 1840, grad. in 1843, and was ordained in Taunton, March 27, 1844, where he has remained ever since, notwithstanding many invitations to go elsewhere. From May, 1853, to July, 1854, he travelled through Europe and the East, where he used most diligently his rare powers of observation, and laid up rich stores for the entertainment and edification of friendly circles, lyceums and magazine readers, since imparted in genial conversation, and by the pen of a ready writer. There is no more laborious, faithful, efficient minister, whether as preacher or as pastor, in the denomination to which he belongs. As a neighbor, a citizen, and a man, he has won a solid respect and general esteem in the community where his lines have fallen. In his mental work he unites, in a marked manner, accuracy and enthusiasm. His is, emphatically, the sound mind in the sound body. Few sons of Harvard have kept up a more devoted interest in their Alma Mater. It is rarely that his eager and inspiriting face is not seen on the boards at her yearly festivities. Well does he bear his part in sustaining the mantle of the good Doctor Pierce of Brookline, in this as well as in the cause of historic accuracy. Here is a meagre outline of his labors: He has printed, first and last, about twenty sermons and lectures; written a dozen articles in the North American Review, and fifteen or twenty in the Examiner, besides some hundreds of critical notices in both these journals; has published a series of letters of foreign travel, enough for two or three volumes, in the Taunton newspaper, in which, also, for nine years, he wrote nearly all the critical articles. He has written eight hundred sermons and seventy lectures, and many other miscellaneous papers. In addition to the pulpit in Taunton, he has had charge for ten years of the pulpit in Raynham for five months in each summer. He has been School Committee man twelve years; Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Bristol Academy for fifteen; Director of Taunton Social Library thirteen years; Corresponding Secretary of the Old Colony Historical Society five years, and two years on the Executive Committee of the American Unitarian Association.

   He has not been kept from his duties a single day by sickness, nor has he been confined to the house by sickness a single day in his life. He has preached and lectured nearly two thousand times.—[Com.]

   The amount of his labors would indicate an aged and most industrious man, and yet he is on the sunny side of 40, apparently little, if any, above 30; and, if kindly spared of heaven, what may he not yet accomplish, to spread the name and secure it other distinctions.

CHAPT. II.

1. John Brigham,[2] Dr., the 2d son of Thomas, senior, seems to have been a reliable and distinguished man, who had enjoyed uncommon advantages for education. He commenced business for himself by erecting a sawmill near the site of one now owned by Haynes & Bush in Northboro', on Howard Brook; he having received, in 1672, a grant of land on Licor Meadow Plain, supposed to be the tract extending from Mount Assabet, N. and N. W., to the farm of Mr. Jairus Lincoln. This grant probably included the site of his mill. "Here he lived in a small cabin for several years, remote from any other white man's habitation, tending his sawmill; until the fear of the savages induced him to retire to a place of greater security," and probably to Cambridge, where he retained his patrimonial estate; for in Philip's war he was not enrolled at Marlboro' with her soldiers. [Rev. Dr. Allen's Cen. Discourse.] If his mill then escaped the torch of the enemy which fired the town it was rebuilt, and in his possession in 1694; and he might have resumed his residence near it from 1677 to 1697, when he took up his abode in Sudbury, where Capt. William Rice now lives, half a mile E. of the Town House. During these intermediate years he was evidently the leading citizen of Marlboro'. He was a good scribe and noted land-surveyor; and received for his services many grants of land from companies, if not from the government. He was styled Mr., or more commonly Dr. Brigham. When the first Charter of Massachusetts was threatened, and all titles to lands held under it about to be annulled, many, as a dernier resort, advocated the value of Indian titles, and betook themselves in earnest to procuring them. Embracing the new doctrine, a company in Marlboro', including the Brighams, purchased of Indians their fertile and long-coveted Plantation of 6,000 acres, adjacent to Marlboro'. This Company employed Dr. Brigham to survey the same, and run out portions of it into lots, chose him proprietors' clerk, and gave him, besides his share, other lots for his services. But the new doctrine, being no longer needed, after the arrival of the second Charter, confirming titles under the first, become exploded; and the proprietors alarmed and perplexed. Dr. Brigham immediately sold out. "Sept. 24, 1691, he, for £16, conveyed to Daniel Rice his 30 acre right in the Indian Plantation, now in the possession of the English, with the allotments of swamp and meadow, with all [future] allotments, divisions and additions." This did not include all his claims. March, 1708, they chose him on a Committee "to act about their title;" and they sought in vain from the General Court a confirmation of it, until in despair of help from that body, the majority, March 24, 1713–14, entered into covenant to stand by and defend each other in their right to this land. Among the 45 signers the name of John Brigham does not appear. After a peaceable possession of 33 years, they, March 20, 1718–19, made one more effort for a title, by asking the General

Court to confirm their records, but all the relief they ever obtained was an act to annex the reservation to Marlboro'.*

Dr. Brigham, while a citizen of Marlboro', acted as a commoner, drew many lots of the town's commons, and is presumed to have served her in every office in her gift. In 1689 he represented her in the General Court. Nov. 9, 1697, he, then of Sudbury, for £70, received of Joseph Freeman of Preston, Ct., a deed of 130 acres in Sudbury, bounded on the S. by the Lancaster Road, and on the E. by the 5 miles of land first granted to Sudbury. This tract is presumed to be the farm now owned and occupied by Capt. William Rice. Oct. 7, 1698, he sold, for £10, to Nathaniel Oke, 12 acres E. of his sawmill, in what is now Northboro'. May 2, 1681, he, with his brothers, for £48, sold 10 acres in Rocky Meadow in Watertown, or Cambridge, i. e., 5 to Geo. Lawrence and 5 to Enoch Sawtel; and Feb. 25, 1703, they settled with the executors of Dep. Gov. Danforth, the friend and trustee of their father, Thomas, who had died 50 years before. In this they acknowledge a former receipt of £16 from Gov. Danforth, and £30 from Thomas Foxcraft, his executor, for which they relinquished all their interest in the "Brigham Farm, lying and being on the rocks in Cambridge."

Immediately on locating in Sudbury Dr. Brigham was chosen selectman, and served 6 years; and was here placed on important committees. In 1705 and 1706 he represented Sudbury in the General Court.

He d. Sept. 16, 1728, aged about 84 years.

He m. three wives; and 1st, Sarah ——, the mother of his children, who seems to have d. 1691–'98; and 2d, Deborah ——, who d. Feb. 7, 1716–17; and 3d, Sarah Bowker, May 22, 1717, whom he probably survived, as no allusion is made to her in the settlement of his estate, and tradition represents him to have sojourned a portion of his last days with his heroic daughter, Mrs. Fay of Northboro'. He had,

2. I. Sarah,[3] b. March 27, 1674, m. —— Goodnow.
51. 3. II. Mary,[3] b. May 6, 1678, m. Gershom Fay, r. Northboro'.
9. 4. III. John,[3] b. Nov. 1680, d. Sept. 16, 1729, m. Martha ——, who d. Nov. 13, 1834.
5. IV. Hannah,[3] March 27, 1683, m. Oliver Ward of Sud., Feb. 2, 1708.
16. 6. V. Thomas,[3] May 6, 1687, m. Dec. 24, 1724, Elizabeth Bowker.
7. VI. Marcy,[3] m. March 23, 1715, Ebenezer Perry of Dedham, r. Sudb.
20. 8. VII. Samuel,[3] who m. Abigail Moore, Aug. 23, 1716.

* The government had conveyed forever all their English rights to the Indians, and had none left for the purchasers; and this they had previously said in answer to complaints and petitions. The moral right of the present occupants is undoubted; but in what consists their title? Possession in other cases gives title. But how is it in the present? Can the State, who retained no right, give one, at the end of 20 or 200 years of peaceful possession?

Suppose the bounds of these 6,000 acres to be ascertained, and a party found to sue for an ejectment of the inhabitants; would none of the Brighams have to move, or make good their warrantees? Gov. Sullivan, the legal oracle of his time, gave it as his opinion, that if a suit were brought against the occupants of Grafton, which had, like this plantation, been conveyed to the Indians, they would be ejected; although the consent of the General Court to the purchase of Grafton was first sought and obtained. Not so in reference to the plantation in Marlboro'. The General Court never acted, except to reply, June 8, 1671, to the petitioners, "that, it being questionable, whether the land desired be within our line, and so not in the power of this Court to grant."

4. 9. John,[3] probably inherited the homestead of his father in Sudbury, and, as his executor, Dec. 30, 1728, exhibited to the Registry of Probate for Middlesex County an inventory of his estate, amounting to £203. 16.9, but died before proceeding further, leaving his wife Martha to complete the settlement, and also to administer upon his own estate. This she undertook, but, in her turn, died before completing either; and was succeeded by her daughter Hannah, aged 21, who accomplished the undertaking, paying out of her grandfather Dr. John's estate, £74.18.1 to each of her aunts, Goodnow, Fay, and Ward; £57.1.4 to her aunt Perry, and a bequest to a grandson Perry; and to her uncle Samuel his father's oxen. His real estate is presumed to have been conveyed mostly to his sons during his lifetime.

The inventory of John, Jun'rs estate, presented by his widow, March 8, 1730, amounted to £487.5.3. At his death he was one of the selectmen of Sudbury. He m. Martha ——, who d. Nov. 13, 1734, leaving the following youthful children, viz.:

10. I. Hannah,[4] Feb. 4, 1712–13, not reported after 1734, prob. d. unm.
23. 11. II. Samuel,[4] April 27, 1716, m. Mary ——, and was drowned.
12. III. Sarah,[4] March 29, 1718, m. Samuel Brown, r. Rutland.
13. IV. John,[4] April 1, 1720, m. March 12, 1750, Abigail Johnson; had Abigail,[5] Dec. 5, 1851.
14. V. Phebe,[4] Oct. 5, 1721, m. —— Hubbard.
15. VI. Abigail,[4] Dec. 31, 1723, m. —— Prescott.

These children, except the eldest, having been left in their minority, Samuel chose David Haynes for his guardian, but Sarah, Phebe, and Abigail, Feb. 10, 1734, were placed under the guardianship of John Green until April 3, 1738, when Sarah, having married Samuel Brown, her sisters chose him for their guardian, and probably removed with them to Rutland. Brown received his discharge in Middlesex County, June 24, 1745, with the receipts of Phebe Hubbard and Abigail Prescott.

6. 16. Thomas,[3] settled in Sudbury, m. Dec. 24, 1824, Elizabeth Bowker, and had,
17. I. Sarah,[4] March 18, 1734–5, m. March 13, 1765, Reuben Willis.
28. 18. II. Abijah,[4] Aug. 26, 1737, m. June 5, 1759, Eunice Willis.
19. III. John,[4] Sept. 14, 1726, m. Cate Willis, Oct. 15, 1775.

8. 20. Samuel,[3] m. Aug. 23, 1716, Abigail Monroe, and r. Sudbury, but had no children recorded.
21. I. Dorothy,[4] who m. Jan. 25, 1738–9, Thomas Howe at Sudb., and
22. II. Sibil,[4] who m. 173–, Zachariah Maynard at Sudbury, might have been his daughters, but were more pr. Nos. 14 and 22 of Ch. III.

3. 51. Mary,[3] according to a reliable tradition, having married and settled in Northboro', one morning, after the men had dispersed to their work, went, with a Mrs. Goodnow, to a meadow to gather herbs. Here they saw a body of Indians rushing from the thicket towards them, and they fled for the garrison. Mrs. Goodnow, being lame, was soon overtaken, seized, dragged into the woods and barbarously murdered, where her mangled remains were found and interred, and the trace of her grave remained visible until the present century. Mrs. Fay succeeded in reaching the garrison and fastening the door, before she was quite overtaken. Here she found one soldier, who, with her help, soon discharged all the muskets left by the men, when she devoted her dexterity to loading, and he his skill to firing, until the alarm drew the men armed from their fields, and the enemy fled.

For the history of her descendants, and the transmission of her character, see my Genealogy of the Fays, nearly ready for publication.

CHAPT. III.

1. v. Samuel,[2] Capt., April 23, 1708, "for a reasonable sum," purchased of Obadiah Ward, Jun., a 10½ acre right in the lands of Marlboro', and in 1686 he was one of a Company, with his brothers, to purchase of the Indians their reservation of 6,000 acres, which the General Court, in 1702, "laid to Marlboro." These purchases secured him and his heirs ample farms in the south parts of the town. May 2, 1681, he, with his brothers, sold two pieces of meadow, inherited from their honored father Thomas, and situated in Rocky Meadow in Watertown, for £48; one to Enoch Sawtel, and the other to George Lawrence; and, Feb. 25, 1694, he sold two lots of meadow in Marlboro' to Thomas Beman. In 1708 he became bound for Joseph Parre to Francis Holmes of Boston, in the penal sum of £100. In 1707 he drew a lot of 21 acres, and a lot of 103 acres, south of Tobacco Meadow, bounded by the path to his Stony Brook Meadow, where, in his right, his heirs drew other lots. He lived 1¼ mile east of the Academy, near where Daniel Brigham resides, and where he erected a tannery, occupied by his descendants to this day. He was a prominent citizen. He served Marlboro', 1699–1703 as town treasurer, and 11 years as selectman. He d. July, 1713, intestate, and Dec. 16, 1713, his widow Elizabeth and son Samuel were appointed his administrators, who then presented an inventory of his estate, appraised at £1263, of which £800 were in land, and £20 in hides in "ffats," and £2.10*s.* in carpenters' tools, and 10*s.* in tools for shoemaking. Curtains and carpet belonged to his house, and £20 were expended in his funeral. To the younger children she was appointed guardian. In the division of his real estate there was assigned to Samuel half of the dwelling-house, with all the lands of the home place, and lands S. E. and S. of Shooting Hill. To Jedediah 250 acres, a part of Wilson's farm S. of Sudbury River, and partly in Hopkinton; to Timothy 65 acres next to Stony Brook Meadow, and other lots near by; to Charles 87 acres of the first division; and to Antipas 44 acres W. of Wilson's Fork, and 42 acres S. of Sudbury River.

He m. Elizabeth How, who d. July 26, 1739, aged 79, and was, doubtless, buried with him and his brother Thomas and wife in the ancient cemetary back of the Academy. He had,

2. i. Elizabeth,[3] March 24, 1685, m. Oct. 16, 1711, Samuel Robinson.
3. ii. Hepsibah,[3] Jan. 25, 1686, m. 1719, John Maynard.
12. 4. iii. Samuel,[3] Esq., Jan. 25, 1689, m. Abigail Moore.
5. iv. Lydia,[3] March 6, 1691, m. 5 (2) 1711, Jonathan Howe.
21. 6. v. Jedediah,[3] June 8, 1693, d. May 21, 1763, m. Bethiah Howe.
28. 7. vi. Jotham,[3] Dec. 23, 1695, d. Nov. 23, 1759, m. Abigail ——.
37. 8. vii. Timothy,[3] Col., Oct. 10, 1698, d. Oct. 1, 1775, m. Martha Johnson.
38. 9. viii. Charles,[3] Esq. Dec. 30, 1700, d. March 17, 1781, Mary Peters.
10. ix. Persis,[3] July 10, 1703, and no further reported.
46. 11. x. Antipas,[3] Oct. 16, 1706, d. April 23, 1746, unmarried.

4. 12. Samuel,[3] Capt. and Esq. In Dec. 1727 leave was granted by the General Court to him and 39 others to purchase Grafton of the Indians, under restrictions and on conditions which seem to have been strictly observed. He settled in the south part of the present town of Marlboro', and became her leading man for a series of years, serving her in all the offices in her gift, and particularly in those of moderator of meetings, assessor, town treasurer, and selectman. He was one of a Committee, in 1716, to seat the meeting. In 1747–9 he administered on the estate of his brother, Antipas. He m. Abigail Moore, Aug. 23, 1716, who d. Nov. 20, 1731, aged 35; but he survived in 1747. He left a large estate, which was settled without the appointment of an administrator. He had,

13. i. Samuel,[4] June 13, 1717, d. June 14, 1717.
14. ii. Sybillah,[4] Oct. 15, 1718, m. Zachariah Maynard, at Sud., pr. 1739?
15. iii. Mary,[4] April 13, 1720.
16. iv. Abigail,[4] December 10, 1721.
47. 17. v. Samuel,[4] Dr., March 3, 1723, d. 1756, m. Ann Gott.
18. vi. Phineas,[4] Dec. 18, 1725, d. Aug. 23, 1736.
52. 19. vii. Uriah,[4] Sept. 10, 1727, m. Sarah Gott.
62. 20. viii. George,[4] March 17, 1730, m. Mary Bragg.

6. 21. Jedediah,[3] Lieut., seems to have settled at the homestead, and to have carried on the tannery. He served in many minor town-offices, and particularly in those of selectman, sealer of leather, &c. In 1746 he was chosen to a seat at the Concord Court as petit juryman. He owned lands at Princeton, Bolton, Lancaster and Marlboro'. Dec. 21, 1762, he "being infirm in body and mind," made his will, bestowing his estate upon Solomon, Francis, Stephen, and Winslow Brigham, Dorothy How, and Lucy Bailey. To Winslow he left the homestead and tannery, half a mile east of Spring Hill, on the road from Marlboro' to Boston, and made him his sole executor. The will was proved June 13, 1763.

He m. May 18, 1720, Bethiah How, who d. June 23, 1756, and had

22. i. Doratha,[4] March 2, 1721, m. Jan. 25, 1738–9, Tho. Howe at Sudb.
69. 23. ii. Solomon,[4] May 25, 1723, d. Feb. 1, 1807.
73. 24. iii. Francis,[4] Aug. 13, 1725, m. Phebe Ward, and d. 1809, aged 77.
25. iv. Lucy,[4] May 15, 1727, m. —— Bailey.
v. Bathiah,[4] March 31, 1729, d. Oct. 7, 1745.
82. 26. vi. Stephen,[4] "Nov. 2," or "Feb. 11," 1732, d. April 17, 1821, a 89, m. Betsey Weeks, r. Princeton.
92. 27. vii. Winslow,[4] Aug. 30, 1736, d. Aug. 29, 1794.

7. 28. Jotham[3] settled in Marlboro', served often as surveyor, and in 1734 as constable, and 1738 as petit juryman. He m. Abigail ——, who d. as his widow, March 24, 1768. He had,

29. i. Betty,[4] Nov. 15, 1719, m. Feb. 23, 1741–2, Jonathan Stratton.
102. 30. ii. Abraham,[4] Feb. 25, 1720–1, d. Nov. 10, 1788, m. Phebe Martin.
31. iii. Edmund,[4] November 15, 1724.
32. iv. Oliver,[4] Sept. 4, 1727, m. Aug. 9, 1757, Ruth Ward.
106. 33. v. Asa,[4] Nov. 1, 1729, d. Nov. 18, 1806, m. Elizabeth Warren.
34. vi. Persis,[4] Jan. 2, 1734; vii. Abigail,[4] July 9, 1737, d Sept. 11, '40,
110. 35. viii. Antipas,[4] May 25, 1740, m. Catherine Wood,
36. ix. Abigail,[4] April 22, 1745.

8. 37. Timothy,[3] Col., was a soldier, a patriot and very distinguished citizen. He was a leader in the enterprise of accomplishing a second division of the original township of Marlboro', and the first town-meeting of Southboro' was held Aug. 14, 1727, at his house, which stood where the Rev. Mr. Breed now resides, about 40 rods east of the Orthodox Church. Here he owned an extensive farm. He was probably an officer in the first French war, and at the defeat of "Mrs. Nabby" Crombie. He was 24 years town treasurer, and an equal number of years selectman of Southboro', very commonly moderator of her meetings, and conspicuous in the care of all her municipal interests. To him was intrusted the keeping of her sanctuary. Of his efficiency in the church and parish no information can be gathered for want of records. He represented Southboro' in the General Court, 1753, 1756, and 1769, and was among the foremost to resist the encroachments of government; for, in 1773, he was the first member on a committee of rights who reported a series of spirited resolutions, and one returning thanks to the citizens of Boston for their early and persevering method in constitutional ways for the support of our civil and religious rights. He was then 75 years old; and he died during the siege of Boston. He acted as guardian to several minors, and as such was receipted, June 13, 1746, by Jonathan Fay, son of John F. of Westboro'. May 4, 1774, he made his will, giving to his wife Sarah one half of his personal property and the improvement of one third of his real estate; to Joshua Smith, her son by a former husband, the other half of his personal property and the improvement for seven years of two thirds of his real estate. After the death of his widow, and the expiration of seven years from his death, all his real estate he gave to George Brigham, the son of his brother Samuel. To Charles Brigham, his brother, he gave his best hat and wig, and what might be due from him to his estate; also Flavel's Works, the Exposition of Genesis and Exodus, and Dr. Colman's Work on the Parable of the Ten Virgins. To Baxter How, whom he had brought up, he bequeathed a cow and a debt which he would owe his estate. To Timothy Smith, son of the above Joshua, £40, lawful money, when twenty-one years old, to be paid him by George Brigham; and to Uriah, son of his brother Samuel, £40, to be paid in instalments by George, after coming into possession of his farm. He made his wife Sarah and Joshua Smith, his brother Charles and nephew George Brigham, executors. Will proved Nov. 7, 1775. He m. Martha Johnson, who d. Sept. 23, 1757, in her 56th year; and 2d, Mrs. Sarah (Prentice) Smith, dau. of Rev. Mr. Prentice of Lancaster, but had no issue.

9. 38. Charles,[3] Esq., appears to have disposed of his lands in Marlboro', and to have settled in Grafton, of which he became, in 1727, one of the 40 proprietors, under the sanction of the General Court. He became one of the most able and distinguished of her citizens, held the most important town offices, and was her representative in the General Court. He was appointed by the Royal Governor a magistrate, an office, in his day, of very great dignity, and sparingly bestowed. He settled upon Brigham Hill, on a rich tract of land, now the country residence of William Brigham, Esq. of Boston, which retains marks of his judgment and taste. A magnificent elm, which he planted about 1745, shows no signs of decay. He m. Mary Peters, from Rhode Island, who d. Feb. 19, 1797, aged 81, and had,

39. I. Charles,[4] Oct. 29, 1732, d. Jan. 20, 1755, unmarried.
40. II. Daniel,[4] April 28, 1735, d. ab. 1759, a soldier, near Crown Point.
115. 41. III. Wm.,[4] March 26, 1739, d. Aug. 1, 1833, a. 94, m. Sarah Prentice.
42. IV. Mary,[4] Dec. 12, 1740, m. —— Parks, r. at New Marlboro'.
43. V. Sarah,[4] April 19, 1743, m. Moses Leland of Grafton.
44. VI. Anna,[4] March 18, 1745, m. Henry Prentice, son of Rev. Solomon Prentice, from Cambridge.
VII. Timothy,[4] Nov. 23, 1747, d. Feb. 9, 1747–8.
45. VIII. Persis,[4] Jan. 4, 1755, m. 1775, Noah B. Kimball of Grafton.
IX. Elizabeth,[4] m. Nahum Warren.

11. 46. Antipas,[3] was less distinguished than his brothers, and d. at Grafton in middle age, and probably unmarried, leaving a house and farm of 260 acres. Lieut. Nathan Brigham of Southboro' was one of the appraisers of his estate; on which his brother Samuel, Esq., of Marlboro', administered, June 7, 1747.

---

17. 47. Samuel,[4] Dr., settled in Marlboro', was chosen town clerk and selectman, in 1754 and 1755, and d. 1756, aged 33 years. He m. ~~Nov. 24, 1747, Elizabeth Wood, who d. s. p.~~; and 2d, Ann Gott, dau. of Benjamin G. of Marlboro', b. 1729. She m. 2d, Capt. Maynard of Westb., and d. July 6, 1799, and was interred in the ancient burying ground in Westboro', near the south wall. Her memory is still cherished. Dr. Samuel had,

48. I. Elizabeth,[5] Aug. 11, 1752, m. —— Goodell.

27. 92. Winslow[4] was an uncommon man and a distinguished citizen. Up to the time he came upon the stage the municipal affairs of Marlboro', from the first, had been, in a great degree, managed by the Brighams, although they had constituted only a fraction of her numerical population; but, during the eventful period of our Revolutionary struggle, he and his namesakes seem to have had almost the entire control. Nothing proves in them a want of patriotism or fidelity to the cause of freedom. Yet they were prudent while the contest was doubtful, half convinced, perhaps, that the Apostolic injunction, "obey Cæsar," i. e. Nero, was binding in the present case, or that they were too easy and prosperous in their circumstances to expect any change for the better: For the records report no complaint of grievances, no patriotic or Revolutionary resolves, no election of vigilance committees, until the last year of the war, when, with a new settler, arrived a spirit of jealousy or rivalry, and every Brigham, save one, was displaced from office; and he who had held the highest in the town was insulted with the lowest, and a committee of vigilance and correspondence chosen. But this overturn lasted but one year,

The Brighams were reëlected, and Winslow again chosen town-clerk and selectman, in which offices he had served the preceding ten years, and in which he was continued for years afterwards. He occupied the ancient homestead, and carried on the tannery. August 4, 1791, he made his will, providing ample support for his wife Elizabeth, and requiring of his legatees such attentions to her comfort as do honor to his heart. For his daughter, Lucy Brigham, he left £150; and for Elizabeth Barnes, £60; to be paid by their brothers, Daniel and Jedediah. To son Aaron he gave £10; to Artemas, Amariah, and John Winslow, he gave £150 each, to be paid by the same, expressing a desire that John Winslow should have a liberal education. To Daniel and Jedediah he bequeathed all his real and most of his personal property. Daniel was to have the Indian pasture of 34 acres, and tan-yard of one acre; and Jedediah the remainder of his lands and buildings, and to be sole executor.

He m. July 29, 1760, Elizabeth Harrington; and perhaps 2d, Elizabeth Larkin, July 27, 1778. His widow Elizabeth d. Oct. 25, 1815, aged 78 years. He had,

41. 115. William,[4] inherited the homestead at Grafton, which, in his father's day, embraced nearly or quite the whole tract still known as Brigham Hill. He was a well-educated man for his time, and a "great reader," but had no taste for public office or employment. His intelligence and standing secured him the offer of a justice's commission, then a great honor, which he declined. In his person he was tall, straight, and eminently muscular, which I am satisfied, from various evidence, must have been the original type of the race. Such was his agility that he was wont "to jump over fences five feet, and even six feet high, without touching hand or foot; and when 90 years old he would rather walk than ride one or two miles, and would perform it nearly as soon as a boy." His health and tenacity of life were wonderful. He never took medicine while he lived, and so escaped death at the doctor's hand, until his 95th year, when he died with old age.

He m. Sarah Prentice, dau. of Rev. Solomon Prentice of Grafton, who d. his wid. Feb. 2, 1834, in her 90th year. They had,

51. 121. Samuel,[5] A. M. and M. D., was one of four of the name of Brigham who joined the same class at Dartmouth College, just before the commencement of the Revolution, and, but for his patriotic ardor, he would, with them, have received the honors of College on the same day in which they were first conferred upon one of the name in this country. But he could not stay within College walls and see the cause of his country go down; and, dark as were her prospects, he joined the standard of Washington, in 1777, as paymaster, and was present at the execution of Major Andre. He returned to College, graduated in 1779, read medicine with Dr. Stephen Ball of Northboro', and commenced practice in Shrewsbury, now Boylston. High expectations were entertained of him, but ere he had taken rank among the eminent practitioners of the country, a casualty befel him which forced him for life almost entirely from practice. Yet he was not lost to the public. He was appointed a magistrate. He aided by his pen and counsel to uphold the laws when an armed attempt, under Shays, was made to subvert them; and I have perused essays from his pen that show him to have been a man of letters and original thought, as well as enlightened patriotism. He is reported to have had a taste for poetry and music, and, for his amusement, to have composed in both. He m. Mary Ball, sister to his medical preceptor, who d. 192. 383. Francis,[6] Capt., settled near his natal place in Marlboro', as a farmer and manufacturer; and has served the town in various offices, and for two years represented her in the General Court. He has erected on part of his splendid water power at Feltonville one of the most complete shoe-manufactories in the country, in driving which he employs about 300 hands. By his extensive improvements he has contributed enough to that flourishing village to constitute him its founder; and, while laying a lasting foundation for prosperity to others, he, sensible that the surroundings of a man are not the man, refrains from wasteful expenditures for ostentatious luxury, giving his employees and neighbors the weight of his example in the right direction.

299. 480. Asa,[6] Hon., b. Aug. 31, 1788. Bereft of his mother at the age of 9 years, and of his father at the age of 14 years, he was apprenticed to his uncle Roger Phelps to learn the tailor's trade. After serving Mr. Phelps faithfully, he carried on the business by himself at Lunenburg and vicinity, where he received the commission of Major in the militia. In 1816 he was burnt out, which so embarrassed his pecuniary affairs as to induce him to remove to Alexandria, La. Here he remained for some years. But after Stephen F. Austin had obtained leave of the Mexican government to settle in Texas, Major Brigham went to that country, and in 1831 removed his family thither. In the war that ensued between Texas and Mexico, he took an active part, and served as commissary to the army. He was one of the signers of the Declaration of Texan Independence, and early became Treasurer of the Republic. This office he held until his death, which occurred prior to the annexation of Texas to the United States. The following obituary of him is from a Texan newspaper:—

Died,—At his residence in Washington, after a long and painful illness, on the 3d of July, 1844, Major Asa Brigham, in the 56th year of his age. Few men of such unimposing bearing, and modest unpretending demeanor, ever filled a larger share of public confidence than the excellent subject of this notice. Holding the keys of the Treasury of the Republic almost from its commencement, we presume no man can be found who would dare question his integrity. As a private citizen, in all the relations of friend, neighbor, relative, husband, and father, his life is beyond reproach—most happily illustrating the fact, that "An honest man's the noblest work of God."

"Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit unto God who gave it."

Dust unto dust, earth we to earth resign,
But memory bids us from the pall turn back
Upon the husband, father, brother, friend.
All these was he whose loss we now deplore.
Within the circle of domestic life,
And in those walks where public duty called,
He moved respected and beloved.

329. 510. William,[6] Esq., A. M., fitted for College at Leicester Academy, graduated at Harvard University, 1829; read law with George Morey, Esq. of Boston; was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, 1832, and subsequently to that of the Supreme Court of the United States. He settled in Boston as a lawyer, where he has devoted himself mainly to his profession, and attained to uncommon eminence as a counsellor and advocate. In the arena of party politics his name has been occasionally entered. In the years 1834, 1835, 1836, 1841, 1849, he represented Boston in the General Court, and in 1856 he was a member of the United States Republican Convention at Philadelphia. In the community of letters Mr. Brigham is more advantageously known. At the Centennial Anniversary of Grafton, April 29, 1835, he gave the Address, which was published. This is a thorough production of the kind, much valued by antiquarians, and contains an embodiment of early history, of which few young men of his age, at the delivery, are possessed. The Review of Young's Chronicles of the Pilgrims, in the Christian Examiner for 1845, and the Review of the Legislation of Plymouth Colony, in the North American Review for 1840, are ascertained to have been from his pen. In 1836 he accepted an appointment from Gov. Everett to compile the Laws of Plymouth Colony, in the execution of which he contributed a valuable addition to our historical literature.

These, and other fruits of his antiquarian and historic research, established his claims, and in 1853 he was chosen one of the very select members of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Mr. Brigham inherits the ancient homestead of his sires in Grafton, which he makes his summer residence, and the place of his agricultural improvements, combining the useful with the ornamental. The interest which he has taken in such improvements, connected with his skill as a writer and his power as a popular speaker, has created a demand among Agricultural Societies for his Addresses; and those delivered by him before the Worcester County Agricultural Society and the Agricultural Society of Westboro', in 1855 and 1859, have been highly commended.

331. 516. Hannah,[6] m. Aug. 21, 1849, for a 3d wife, Rev. Stillman Pratt, son of Dea. Benjamin and Mary S. Pratt of Reading, who was b. at Reading, April 24, 1804, prepared for College at Phillips Academy, graduated at the Theological Seminary in Andover, was licensed by the Andover Association, was pastor of the Orthodox Congregational Church in Orleans 4½ years, stated supply 6 months at Eastham, preached 9 years to the Congregational Church in South Adams, 3 years to the Congregational Church in Melrose, was pastor of the Congregational Church in Carver 3 years, published the Mother's Assistant 2 years, and the Middleboro' Gazette 2 years. Under his ministry no less than 161 persons joined the several churches above named, and, at South Adams and Melrose, churches were organized and meeting-houses built. He still continues his labors in the pulpits near Middleboro', where he resides, as editor.

Of his various works, published by the Massachusetts Sunday School Society, are "The Two Samuels, The Glory and Downfall of Edom, The Traitor, and the Wrecked Sailor Boy."

He also wrote and published The Life of Col. John Charles Fremont, Biographical Catalogue of the Class that graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, 1831, and Bible Questions for Young Children, which last has passed a second edition. P. S. The foregoing Genealogy is unavoidably incomplete for want of complete returns; and, like the first edition of every similar work issued in this country, doubtless contains inaccuracies. But these it is believed will not in a single instance mar the correctness of the tracing or the general truthfulness of the historical notes, things of principal importance in such compilations.

All errors and defects it is now proposed to remedy by preparing a Supplement, to issue in fly leaves to 100 subscribers, to be pasted into their copies (as they may be neatly and substantially done at the end) and bound with the remaining 500 copies of the entire edition, which will be retained for the present in sheets, before other subscribers can be furnished. This arrangement is adopted to obtain and insert all such corrections, emendations and additions as 100 subscribers of the different branches shall, after examining their copies, report to me at Boston. Now is the time to render the work accurate and complete: and if correspondents will promptly aid, and send me the addresses of any Brighams not referred to in the Index of Residences, I may succeed in finding the lost branches, and in furnishing a full Register of all the Brighams descended from Thomas Brigham the Puritan. This is desirable. More interesting facts, than any here given, may be obtained, and materials accumulated for another edition, which the race of a future age may demand, and peruse with more profit and pleasure. Let us then continue our preparations; for the demand will come, if the Brighams cling to the religion of their fathers to which they are so indebted, and preserve the respectability and nobleness legible in every generation down to the present.

ABNER MORSE.

Ch. I. No. 17. Jonathan Brigham,[3] commonly called the "Indian Warrior," was one day approached by an Indian while chopping in the woods; and as he saw the savage preparing to level at him, he seized his own musket, stepped forward in full view, and drew upon him, exclaiming as he did so, "shoot straight, you dog." Both fired at the same moment, when the Indian dropped his gun, and, giving a tremendous whoop, bounded high into the air, and fell dead. His bullet passed close to the ear of Jonathan, who escaped unhurt.

vi. Mary L.,[7] b. Nov. 2, 1823, d. Feb. 28, 1856; m. Dec. 20, '43, Gardner Morse, Esq. of New Haven, Ct., then the father of five small children, by whom she also had five others—and of her discharge of duty in her three-fold relation, I cannot speak in justice to the convictions of my own observation and not disturb envy. No spy in the family could have told, from her manner or that of either child, that she was not the natural and beloved mother of all; while the religious order of her house showed a hearty coöperation with her husband to sanctify domestic harmony and love, and render them immortal. And God has not forgotten her fidelity; for, since he took her to himself, he has provided for her own little ones another mother of like sympathies and devotedness to repair and prolong rare domestic enjoyments.
